Enter the organisation's purposes (also known as 'objects') exactly as they are written in its governing document.

Fostering the education of the public, and in particular preadolescent underprivileged youngsters, in the field of procreation, contraception, and health with particular reference to the consequences of population growth.

Classification: What

Every charity on the Register of Charities has a classification. This is so that potential donors, beneficiaries and others who search the register can find types of charities they are interested in.

Our charity classification uses four headings. These describe WHAT a charity is set up to achieve, HOW it achieves it, WHO it helps and WHERE it operates.

Choose classifications that reflect your charity's purposes and how you currently achieve them.

Education

What subjects does the organisation advance education in?

Procreation, contraception, and health with particular reference to the consequences of population growth. Professor Desire Collen has previously been involved in and funded The University of Oxford's "Collen Programme: Fertility, Education and Environment", whose research supports that education in this area would drive behind the uptake of family planning methods (See: <https://www.ageing.ox.ac.uk/projects/view/8>).

What does the organisation do to support/advance education?

The Charity will deliver its objects by funding education for preadolescent underprivileged youngsters on procreation, contraception, and health with particular reference to the consequences of population growth.

What does the organisation advance education in?

Procreation, contraception, and health with particular reference to the consequences of population growth.

How many hours a week does the organisation provide education?

[Desire, please confirm that the Charity will only be funding (rather than it providing) education]

What safeguarding measures are in place to protect vulnerable beneficiaries?

Carrying out the purpose

The organisation's purposes are:

Fostering the education of the public, and in particular preadolescent underprivileged youngsters, in the field of procreation, contraception, and health with particular reference to the consequences of population growth.

Explain how the organisation carries out its purposes:

The Charity will deliver its purposes by funding education for preadolescent underprivileged youngsters on procreation, contraception, and health with particular reference to the consequences of population growth.

Attach any document (such as a business plan) which sets out how the organisation carries out its purposes:

Benefits

What are the benefits of the organisation's purposes?

Lack of education on procreation and contraception is projected to lead to rapid population growth and high fertility, particularly in the continent of Africa. Research led by a number of organisations and programmes, such as the Oxford Programme on Fertility, Education & the Environment, show that this threatens the wellbeing of individuals and communities in the poorest developing countries particularly because there will be a significant increase in the requirement for food, fresh water, energy and minerals (see: <https://www.ageing.ox.ac.uk/research/programmes/oxfee/>). With this in mind, the charity aims to educate the intended beneficiaries on procreation, contraception and health.

Attach any document which shows how the organisation provides benefit:
